

THE KING MUST ACCEPT ADVICE OF HIS CABINET

Saul Hayes And H. C. Goldenberg
Address Historical Club

AT FACULTY CLUB

Papers on "The Relations of the Crown and the Prime Minister"

That the King is bound to accept the advice of his Prime Minister was the conclusion reached by H. C. Goldenberg in his paper on "The Relations of the Crown and the Prime Minister," delivered last night before the Historical Club at the Faculty Club. The speaker traced the historical development of the office of prime minister and showed by specific references the gradual change in its powers. Goldenberg summed up the rights of the King in relation to his cabinet as being the right to be consulted, the right to encourage and the right to warn. Saul Hayes, the other speaker of the evening, discussed the relations between the Prime Minister in Canada and the Crown's representatives, the Governor-General.

Starting at the time of the Hanoverian dynasty in England, Goldenberg showed how the control of government policy was transferred to the cabinet owing to the fact that George I did not understand English ways and methods. The great impulse toward the development of cabinet government came from Sir Robert Walpole, the first English minister, who was both leader of the House of Commons and head of the national executive. From this point on the speaker traced out the gradual transition of control of government policy from the hands of the Crown to those of the Prime Minister.

One of the outstanding constitutional developments was involved in the passage of the first Reform Bill in 1832. At the time of the passage of this Bill, William the Fourth allowed his view about the Bill to become known, and therefore took steps which today would doubtless be regarded as unconstitutional and improper. In contrast to this the speaker quoted Edward the seventh who said, "The King never expresses any opinion on political matters except on the advice of his responsible ministers."

Goldenberg went on to discuss the influence which Queen Victoria exercised on the foreign policy of Great Britain, and her success in this direction. In dealing with her influence on government policy he quoted the important fact that no reasons of expediency as to public business, or the possible effects of frequent general elections, would be sufficient grounds for the Crown refusing a dissolution on the advice of its ministers.

The next important point dealt with was the passage of the Parliament Bill in 1910, restricting the power of vote of the House of Lords. In order to assure the passage of this Bill the King pledged himself, at the advice of the Prime Minister, to create a sufficient number of peers to ensure its passage through the House of Lords. Throughout this constitutional crisis the Crown acted upon the advice of its minister thus making another step forward in the vesting of power in the hands of the cabinet.

The last events and those of the past few years add strength to the view that the King is bound to accept the advice of the Prime Minister at all times. In support of this last statement the speaker mentioned instances from the constitutional history of the past few years.

In dealing with the Canadian phase of the subject, Saul Hayes first traced out the growth of responsible government in Canada and the relation to it of the Governor-General. As a result of the Lepine case of powers of the Governor-General were modified so as to cause him to accept the advice of his ministers on matters of local interest. Hayes quoted similar cases that occurred in other British Dominions and in conclusion it was found that the relations of the Governor-General to his cabinet.

As is the custom, an open forum was held at the conclusion of the address and all those present, professors, guests and members joined wholeheartedly in the discussion. Sir Arthur Currie, who entertained the club as his guests also took part in the discussion and Professor H. A. Smith, an authority on constitutional law and practice, presented many interesting details. Refreshments were served on page four.

Players Club Cast All Parts For "Loyalties"

At a meeting of the Players Club last night in the Annual Room of the McGill Union the provisional casting of their annual play took place.

Galsworthy's "Loyalties" has been selected as the production; it is a very enthralling stage portrait of a certain section of English life, combined with a well developed plot.

All the characters of the play were cast very successfully after careful selection by those in charge. Rehearsals will take place regularly on Tuesdays and Thursdays and those cast for their respective part are requested to turn out next Thursday.

Further information concerning the business of the club will be published in the McGill Daily later during the week.

MARITIME UNION TO BE DEBATED

Patriotic Party Proposes Bill at Mock Parliament

CHANGE NAME

Seven Men to be Picked to Debate for College

The question of the union of the Maritime provinces will be the subject of discussion at the session of the Mock Parliament which will be held in the McGill Union at 8:15 this evening. Debaters to represent McGill in several intercollegiate and local features will be chosen by judges on the strength of the showing made in tonight's Parliament.

The Government is under the lead of John P. Humphrey while the Opposition will rally around Gordon M. Webster of second year Law. In addition to the main bill of the evening, the union of the Maritimes, there will be presented a motion to change the name of McGill Mock Parliament to McGill Parliament.

The Bill of the evening, whose short title is "That the three Maritime provinces be united into one province" will be proposed by the Minister of Customs, Bernard M. Alexander and seconded by the Prime Minister.

Those who are introducing the bill feel that the Maritime Provinces are not able to exercise their authority at the present time owing to the fact that they are divided into three separate units. They consider that the only way in which the provinces can save themselves is by united action so that they will not be swamped by the other and larger provinces as they have in the past.

Seven men are to be chosen for debates.

Two men will be picked to debate against the lady representatives of the Delta Sigma Society; two will be chosen to debate against Marquette University, of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, in a debate which is to take place here; while three others are needed to represent McGill in New Jersey Law School. All these men will be selected by a committee of judges composed of the Hon. A. K. Hugesson and members of the staff who will attend the session of the Mock Parliament and hear the various speakers.

MECHANICS' INSTITUTE LECTURES

Dr. Harrison, Principal of Macdonald College to Speak Thurs.

F. C. Harrison, D.Sc., F.R.S.C. principal of Macdonald College, will deliver an illustrated lecture on "The Practical results of Bacteriological Research" on January 27 at 8:15 at the Mechanics' Institute of Montreal.

This is the ninth of a series of popular lectures under the auspices of the Mechanics' Institute, in co-operation with McGill University and the Geographical Society of Montreal and are entirely free to all those who care to attend.

NOTICE

Tenders are now being received for the Alma Mater Dance which is to take place on Tuesday, Mardi Gras March 1. A seven piece orchestra is desired.

NEW LITERARY CLUB FORMED BY STUDENTS

Literature For Literature's Sake Object
Of Club

HONOR STUDENTS

Freshmen or Women Will not be Permitted to Join Society

Literature for literature's sake, may be termed the motto of the new Literary Club formed in the Arts Building yesterday at five o'clock. This club saw its birth for a long time past in the minds of those students who do not get the full substance of the English Literature taught in College and who feel that the Literary side should be dealt with more fully. It was not until yesterday however that the club was actually formed and although its first quarters were rather inconspicuous, namely the smoking room, yet it was felt that the meeting was a success.

The Literary club will be formed along the lines of the Economics Club or The History Club and will deal solely with the Literary side of the English Language. It is to be remembered that this Club is to be distinguished entirely from the McGill Literary and Debating Club which is more or less a debating union, interesting itself more in debating and mock Parliaments than in English literature. It is therefore with great interest that we await further developments of the Club.

The purpose of the club is very inspiring. It aims, in no uncertain way, to find a medium for literary expression by the members of the club. It is for that reason that certain students have allied themselves for intellectual uplifting of literary standards.

No women will be permitted to join the club or in any way be permitted to take active part in any of its functions. This is a strict law and will be adhered to strictly. Otherwise, with one exception the membership will be unrestricted. The one exception will be that Freshmen will be excluded due perhaps to their inability to appreciate the English language.

The name of the new club has not as yet been decided on but at the next meeting which will take place this

R.V.C. STUDENTS TO DEBATE SOON

Teams Will be Sent to Varsity and Queen's

The Women's Intercollegiate Debate is being held on February 5th at 8 in the Moyses Theatre, McGill. Varsity, Queen's are the members of the Women's Intercollegiate Debating Union. Each college has two teams. In the present system three debates take place on the same night, one at each university.

The McGill team this year consists of Miss Scrier, President of the Women Students' Society, and Miss Leona Gray, President of the R.V.C. Undergraduate Society. They will debate at Toronto. The other members are Miss Maymie MacSporran and Miss Marian Ross, President and Vice-president respectively, of the Delta Sigma Society.

Resolved that the commercial spirit of the America of today is detrimental to the development of the Arts will be the topic. This should prove of interest to all students, since it is a very debatable subject.

Dorothy Harris and Mary White of Queen's will uphold the affirmative of the question when they debate here. They will be opposed by M. MacSporran and M. Ross. This debate will be held at McGill.

Those who intend to come are urged to buy their tickets as soon as possible. Tickets may be obtained from any member of the Delta Sigma Society executive, Bill Gentleman, Highland, or the porter at the Union. They will be sold at 30 cents each.

Miss MacSporran, R.V.C. '27, is well known for her ability in public speaking. This is the third year she is speaking in intercollegiate debates. Miss Ross, R.V.C. '28, is making her first appearance as an intercollegiate debater. She has carried off prizes twice; at the Annual Public Speaking Contest of the Delta Sigma Society.

Howard Ross To Discuss World Unrest Monday

Howard S. Ross, K.C., D.C.L., will deliver an address on "World Unrest - A Suggested Cure" at the next meeting of the McGill Labor Club, which will take place on Monday, Jan. 31st, at 8, in Strathcona Hall.

Mr. Ross, it will be remembered, acted as Imperial Chairman of the Labor Adjustment Board and as Arbitrator on a number of boards appointed under the Industrial Disputes Act. His discussion should, therefore, offer many new views on the problem.

Discussing land and money questions, industrial relations, the co-operative movement, government and methods of voting, he has won for himself an enviable reputation as a fluent speaker of note.

All interested are cordially invited to attend the meeting.

ECONOMICS CLUB MEETS TOMORROW

Russell and Yuile to Deliver Papers

SITUATION IN CHINA

Meeting Will Take Place in
Smoking Room of Arts
Building

"China" will be discussed in two papers to be given by James V. Russell and Charlie L. Yuile, both of Arts '27, at tomorrow evening's meeting of the Political Economy Club. The meeting will be held in the Smoking Room of the Arts Building.

The first paper on this topic will be delivered by James V. Russell who will deal with the present economic position of China and its relations with foreign powers. Charles L. Yuile will deliver the second paper and will deal mainly with the events occurring in China at the present time. The great deal of space devoted to this subject by the newspapers and the general interest which the people take in this subject should give rise to two excellent papers on the part of the speakers.

After the reading of the papers the meeting will be thrown open for discussion, is anticipated in view of the fact that this subject is eagerly followed by students of Political Economy. Doctors Leacock, Hemmison and Day Professors Farthing and Goforth have signified their intention of being present and of participating in the discussion as well as to present their views on the Chinese situation. It is expected that this meeting will attract one of the largest audiences which the club has yet had this year and arrangements are being made to accommodate all who care to attend.

Refreshments will be served at the close of the meeting.

WOULD MAKE USE OF CHINESE LABOR

Prof. Goforth of McGill
Speaks at Ottawa

Ottawa, Jan. 25.—That "Contract" labor from China should do the "spade" work in the development of British Columbia's resources was a suggestion put forth by Prof. W. Goforth of the department of political science at McGill in a lecture here.

He suggests that indentured labor be brought in from China to do the work of developing the latest advanced of our provinces. He believes these men should come in under contracts of three to five years. Care should be taken that these laborers be returned to their country after their term had expired.

Prof. Goforth would fix the wages of these men at not more than 25 cents per day and would even specify the nature of their foodstuffs. Although this system would be operated on a semi-military plan, this would not mean slavery. Instead, the Chinese would benefit by it, as would British Columbia.

Prof. Goforth is an authority on Chinese problems and believes the present crisis will soon pass over. He himself was born in China.

FAMOUS FIFTH SYMPHONY TO BE PRESENTED

Second Beethoven Concert This Afternoon At 5:15

IN MOYSE HALL

Conservatorium Orchestra
Prepares — Increase Number for Occasion

The second concert in the series of the Beethoven Centenary Commemorative Orchestral Concerts will be held this afternoon at 5:15 in the Moyses Hall of the Arts Building.

The concerts are held under the auspices of the McGill Conservatorium of Music and are three in number. The first held a little while ago, was according to general opinion a great artistic success and the second concert promises to surpass the first in every way. Moyses Hall, where the concerts are held has revealed to acoustical properties and has excellent seating capacity for the large audience expected.

The programme will consist of two parts. The first part, which is very short will be the rendition of the overture. Prometheus. This is one of the best known of Beethoven's overtures and is a fitting introduction to the symphony which forms the second part of the programme. Symphony No. 5 in C minor is perhaps one of the most widely known of Beethoven's Symphonies for this occasion the orchestra has been slightly enlarged. The whole concert will last only about an hour and music lovers are assured of a most enjoyable time.

Notes on Music

Concerning the concert, the Conservatorium has issued the following program notes:

"The Overture begins with an introductory Adagio 16 bars in length, leading to the Allegro molto on bri when the chief subject is introduced by the strings, chords for the wind being added 12 bars later to increase the volume of tone in working up to a climax. The contracting second subject played by the Flutes and Oboe, follows immediately. After a short discussion of the motives derived from both subjects the themes are again presented in their entirety and followed by a brilliant Coda.

MONSIEUR E. GIBSON IN FRENCH LECTURE

To Speak Before L. Alliance
Francaise

Monsieur E. Gibson of Sorbonne University, Paris will deliver a lecture on "L'idealisme dans la litterature Contemporaine" on Thursday, Jan. 27th at 8:45 p.m. in the Moyses Hall.

The lecture, which will be delivered in French, should prove especially interesting to the French-speaking students.

This announcement comes from the Committee on Extension Courses and University Lectures, who are working in conjunction with L'Alliance Francaise.

Free tickets can be obtained, on application at the Registrar's office.

CHILD AMAZES SAVANTS

Seven-year-old Girl Delivers
Lecture Before Botanists

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 25.—(By Exchange Service) — Surrounded by a huge collection of orchids, collected and mounted by herself, a seven-year-old girl astounded members of the Botanical Society of Pennsylvania a few days ago, in a lecture which she delivered in MacCarlane Hall, University of Pennsylvania. The prodigy, Miss Betty Frome, displayed an astounding knowledge of the botanical science.

The youthful botanist first became interested in orchids a year ago, when she saw one of the exotic flowers for the first time. Her father took her to see Dr. John W. Harshberger, Professor of Botany, at the University, who, detecting the child's aptitude in the science, advised her father to aid her in her study. Since that time, she has made phenomenal progress in her chosen specialized branch of the botanical science.

Psychologists To Hear Paper By Ralph Merry

"Sensory Defects and Mental Abnormality" will be the subject of an address to be given at the next meeting of the Psychological Society by Ralph Merry B.A. The meeting will be held in the Arts Building on Monday evening.

Merry is a graduate of the class of Arts '24, taking honors in English and Psychology. He is at present in the Wesleyan College.

Since the meeting will be open to all, the speaker intends to make it as popular as possible. He will also discuss the recent experiments in this branch of Psychology which are being carried on in different universities. The address promises to be of great interest.

Members of the club and all others interested in Psychology are cordially invited to attend.

MACCABAEAN CIRCLE WILL MEET SUNDAY

Dr. Otto Klineberg to Speak on "Folk, Love and Myths"

Otto Klineberg, M.A., M.D., will discuss "Folk Lore and Myths" at the next meeting of the Maccabean Circle, which will be held on Sunday afternoon at 3 in the Ballroom of the McGill Union.

Dr. Klineberg, at present connected with the Department of Psychology at Columbia University, is a well-known graduate of McGill University where he received both an Arts degree and a Medical degree. At all times he has shown a marked interest in psychological and anthropological questions, and an especial ability to lecture in an interesting and instructive manner on such questions.

While at McGill, Dr. Klineberg took an active interest in the Maccabean Circle; and did much to cause the growth of the Circle from an organization of a handful of members to one of reasonably large proportions. He served as President of the Circle for some years. He has also addressed its meeting on several occasions.

The speaker will deal with the subject, "Folk Lore and Myths" from a psychological point of view. His address will embrace the general psychological problems and the ideas involved in, as well as the circumstances relating to, the myths and stories of the Old Testament, of the Indians, and various other peoples.

At this meeting, also, will be chosen those who are to represent the Maccabean Circle at the Intercollegiate Memorial Debate, which is to take place in Montreal in the near future. The Executive of the Circle announced that only those who have paid their membership fees will be entitled to vote for the debaters in question.

The Executive expects that all interested will be present at the meeting next Sunday afternoon.

MODERN ENGLISH FICTION

Third of Series of Seven Lectures in Association Hall

Miss J. G. Sime will deliver a lecture on "Robert Louis Stevenson and Sir James Barrie" on Thursday evening, January 27, in the Association Hall of the Y.M.C.A., 127 Drummond St. This is the third of a series of seven lectures which Miss Sime is delivering on the "Ebb and Flow of our Modern English" under the auspices of the Sir George Williams College. Miss Sime is a celebrated authority on Modern English fiction and in view of this it is expected that she will handle the topic in a very efficient manner.

PLAY CASTING BROUGHT OUT LARGE CROWD

Eighty Students Aspire To Parts In Moyses Production

ENGLISH DEPARTMENT

"Trelawney of the Wells" to be Staged Latter Part of February

So successful were the preliminary casting try-outs for the play "Trelawney of the Wells" that it is to be produced in Moyses Theatre during the latter part of next month, that further days had to be arranged for more than eighty undergraduates of the different faculties and years appeared on the Moyses Theatre stage all hours during yesterday to read parts for this, the first venture of the new course recently established by the Department of English here. Before nine o'clock, the hour set for commencing the preliminary trials, many had gathered in the auditorium to await their turn for try-outs.

In view of this encouraging start it was announced last evening that all today will be devoted to further casting. From nine until seven o'clock and in the afternoon from ten until four, are the hours announced.

Great interest as evinced by all those appearing yesterday it was stated by those in charge, and the majority of students displayed keen appreciation of the parts given them to read. But it was pointed out, while good voices and such like are a very desirable, nevertheless the characters of the play demand certain types. This necessitates trying all sorts and varieties of men and women until the exact, precise type called for is found. Therefore it is hoped that more of the undergraduates will find time to turn out sometime during today.

The books of this Pinero play are now on their way up here, and it is expected that all will be in readiness to proceed with the first rehearsals soon. Meantime typed sheets of speeches culled from parts of the three acts are being utilized to put the aspirants to dramatic fame through their pages.

In all probability the production will take place sometime during the last week in February, thus coming

MISS SHACKLETON TO GIVE LECTURE

Illustrated Address Will be on
'Celebrities in the Limelight'

"Celebrities in the Limelight" is the title of an illustrated address which will be given by Miss Kathleen Shackleton, well-known artist of pen-sketches, in the Moyses Hall, on Monday evening, Jan. 31, at 8:45.

Miss Shackleton will illustrate her lecture with lantern slides of her own sketches. Among her sketches of famous people will be those of John Galsworthy, H. G. Wells, Margaret Kennedy, Rebecca West, Ian Hay and Anita Loos, with other well-known figures from every sphere of life, all become real to the spectators through the artist's uncanny ability for depicting personality as well as appearance.

Free tickets for students are obtainable at the Registrar's Office, McGill.

CO-ED IS SAFER WITH

Least Reckless Driver Than Male
College Student

Washington D.C. — As an automobile driver, the co-ed is a better insurance risk than the male college student. This is gained from replies to a questionnaire sent out by the American Automobile Association to 125 lending insurance companies.

The co-ed is neither so reckless nor so careless, the answers disclose as her strong-armed campus brother. She also fares better in emergencies. The college boy is considered such a bad risk, the replies indicated, that companies do not seek to insure him.

TREBLED

Enrollment at the University of Nevada has nearly trebled in ten years. This year there are one thousand students and a class of 300 will graduate.

Dramatics at McGill

WHATEVER criticism there may be made of the musical interest amongst the students of this university, it cannot be said that they are lacking in dramatic interest. The University is now afforded the spectacle of four campus organizations holding rehearsals at the same time for performance in the near future. The Choral Society have been hard at work for some time now in preparation for their "Tom Jones". The Red and White Revue have started their rehearsals for their presentation in March. The Players Club, after a late start, have begun casting for the plays they are to present shortly. On top of all this we receive the announcement of a new play which is to be put on in Moyse Hall by the English Department.

With all these rehearsals and try-outs being held one cannot help but pause to think of the vast amount of time such matters take up. But we come to college to build character and certainly acting has a whole lot to do with character.

The Proposed Literary Club

THE announcement of the formation of a Literary Club modelled along the lines of the Historical and Economics Club is welcome in the possibilities it suggests. The desire of students to be interested in the study of English literature to want to supplement the knowledge they acquire in lectures by discussion amongst themselves is natural and commendable. Lectures cannot but serve as mere guides to reading, especially in the study of literature.

We would, however, venture to make this suggestion concerning this new club. If undergraduates interested in literature are to read papers and take part in the discussions, then let the subject be such that are not covered in any of the courses in the department. It would, for instance, be superfluous to read a paper on some aspect of Spenser, Milton, Shakespeare, because these are already taken in the Department. Rather would we suggest that modern writers be made the subjects of discussion by the members. Modern literature because of its nature can hardly be treated in a course of lectures in a university. Students who are interested in literature get it up by themselves. What more suitable list of subjects can be suggested?

We hope, also, that the Club will not be restricted to students in the English Department but that its meetings will be as open as those of the Economics Club. Every student should be permitted to attend.

China and Canadian Journals

WHEN things happen, people talk, and sometimes talk impulsively, blantly, and unfortunately. Things are bound to happen as long as the world functions properly; but there is no earthly reason why people should talk inane when those things happen; for, at the present time when education is supposed to be progressing at a rapid pace, those who are being educated should be so trained as to behave themselves and talk and write only when they are fully advised of facts and conditions, and then only when necessary.

An example is the current editorial lead that appears in some of the Dominion's self-styled "leading" newspapers, now that there is somewhat of a fuss in the Orient. It might be more correct to term these same dailies, Canada's "misleading" newspapers.

Whenever something like the present unsettled condition in China occurs, a mere man sits in his editorial sanctum, chewing fingernails for inspiration, jots down a few conclusions regarding the situation that he has read of in a news despatch that appears in his same paper, publishes them in the editorial columns, that are supposed to contain the pith of the paper, wipes away a few beads of perspiration, and remarks something to the effect that he has done a thing that should influence the party in power to do something big to which he, the editor, can point and say: "I was responsible for that action."

This very something is happening and has been happening for the past ten days in most of the big Canadian journals. The innocent mass of Canucks that read these columns get a corresponding impression, and, when the time comes, it takes but a spark to set ablaze public sentiment and opinion.

It is apparent to all who will look at the facts fairly and squarely that if ever there was a need for broad-minded, sensible, educated men in the fourth estate of the dominion, there is today. Men who will acquaint themselves of special conditions and causes before stepping out into print with hot-air, sentimental rot that does nothing but mislead the public, are a public menace.

The mass mind is a funny thing. It should have sage guidance in matters foreign to it, and the hand that can mould this mass mind the best, is the same hand that pens the words of the editorial page.

What we are trying to drive at is: Don't write or talk about things that might have a serious result with a large number of people, if you do not know the other side of the case. It'll only make a fool out of you, and probably corpses out of a good many of your fellow countrymen.

Bed-Time Stories For Freshmen

NO. 12

(M.H.F.)

From afar how delicate and elegant she looked. The position of her arms the pulse of her head, the roundness of her bosom—the beauty of them appealed to him.

She was no trick of his eyesight! Her loveliness did not fade as he advanced upon her with a slow measured step.

It could not see the color of her eyes, her eyelashes drooped to deeply over them. He guessed they were blue. Her small straight nose, with its two nostrils just slightly distended, was unpowdered. Her rosy cheeks had that good healthy glow. But what perfect lips she had! Cherry-colored, and small, and bow-shaped they reminded him of "the lips of her that lured a thousand souls."

What a thrill ran through him when he touched her cool smooth arms! He ran his hand along them, gently, caressingly. He put his arm slowly around her. She did not resist it. The stuff that she wore felt fine under his fingers.

The shape of the calves and of her ankles, too, were perfect. The closeness of the tight fitting silk stockings outlined them well.

A thing of beauty is a joy for ever. Yet her frailty worried him. He knew she was too delicate, and Heavens alone knew that he didn't have enough money to buy another clay model for his dress display window.

Fabulae Absurdæ XIII

Once upon a time there was an inmate of McGill—an Arts student—who cursed with an inferiority complex and a certain absentmindedness. A poor fellow, deserving of the sympathy of the charitable.

Now one day he went to the Library Reading Room at the quiet hour after one o'clock and set himself to study. His inferiority complex did not interfere with his powers of concentration, and soon he was deep in some more or less weighty work.

An hour passed. People came in greater numbers. They flowed all over the Reading Room and settled down to work also. Another hour passed. Our young friend—we'll call him Maurice for short—glanced up. Then he looked up. And he had good reason to sit up. All around him in vast numbers were girls.

As we have said, he was possessed of an inferiority complex, but this did not interfere with the rapidity of his thinking. In the proverbial flash he realized that he had planted himself on the south side of the aisle, in the preserves of the dreaded co-ed. Whatever was he to do? There were apparently two alternatives. He could arise and take up his books and walk; but he knew his inferiority complex would cause him to drop something and bring all eyes upon him; or he could stay until everybody else had gone—but no, even now he could hear subdued titters all around him. On the horns of this awful dilemma he paused petrified. He began to perspire.

But he was not long to remain in agony. A young man arose from the other end of the library and came to him. When Maurice perceived him approaching, horrible fears filled his mind. Who was this sinister apparition who had such a caustic smile? The strange one tapped Maurice on the shoulder. Could the earth have opened at his feet, he would gladly have leaped into the chasm. He squirmed.

"May I congratulate you," said the sinister figure, "may I congratulate you on your firm stand for the rights of Man? Tomorrow you will be accounted a hero, for you are the first to invade the camp of our enemy. I am the President of the Ill-Mannered Beggars. On my own responsibility I declare you are an honorary member of our exclusive organization."

So great (or should one say, so inferior?) was Maurice's inferiority complex that he strode out of the library feeling as pleased as a man who has passed first year English.

The GOOSE STEP

A Compendium of Calumny Dedicated to the McGill Intelligentsia.

MANIFESTO

THE McGill Intelligentsia, the most august body of intelligent persons in this benighted seat of the higher learning, hereby announce themselves sponsors of a weekly column to be known as The Goose Step. In view of the fact that the purpose of the column is to amuse ourselves we gracefully ignore all requests and dedicate the column to ourselves.

The Intelligentsia of McGill is composed of a few dynamic students, the cream of the university's intellect. We believe in the Superman because we are the Superman. We believe in criticism that is destructive. We are vehement in our criticism and exasperating in our attitude. We shall be lofty and disdainful, impatient and irascible.

We shall perpetrate outrages as piously outrageous as libel laws and a fatherly Students' Council permits us. We shall be merciless and ruthless.

We are instituting a reign of intellectual terror at McGill. Beware ye morons and underdogs!

VARIATIONS ON A MOLSON MOTIF

IT is not too early in the season to suggest an issue which might be fought out in the Student Council presidential elections which will be held this spring. Student elections have been singularly free from the contamination of platforms these past few years. They have been clean gentlemanly contests between two undergraduates who always avowed a desire to see his opponent elected. This is a most deplorable and disreputable state of affairs.

The Goose Step stands for more and dirtier elections.

In order to enliven the next election and at the same time do an invaluable service to the student body of McGill we suggest with as much respectability as we can muster for the occasion that the issue be the sale of beer in the Union. The sale of beer in the Union, up to the time of this writing, is prohibited. This is in accordance with the will of the donor of the Union to the student body, the late Sir William Macdonald. Sir William, who was a cigarette manufacturer, made no such regulation as to smoking. Students may smoke at any time or any place in the building and never shall this right be denied them.

Why cannot students have the same privilege as to beer? This is an important question. Many objections may be raised against the idea but the only valid one we have heard is that of a student who declared himself against the plan on the grounds that the Union can never be made to look as attractive as the Pig. But we have our doubts.

If only a politician were to appear with a beer-selling-in-the-union platform he would undoubtedly be elected. We should support him. Hoch Macdonald, Hoch Molson, Hoch Webster, Hoch Hoch.

THE LAST VERDICT

VAN Vechten don't know how to write,
 The feller won't never know how to write,
 It bears repetition, though it may seem trite:
 Van Vechten don't know how to write.

WE present this from Glenn Frank, President of the University of Wisconsin.

"And as long as I am president of the University of Wisconsin, this complete freedom of thought and expression will be accorded with utter impartiality alike to teachers who entertain conservative opinions and to teachers who entertain radical opinions. The fact that I may think that an official of the state may think a teacher's opinions wrong-headed or even dangerous will not alter this policy. For the whole of human history presents unanswerable proof that only through the open and unhampered clash of contrary opinions can truth be found."

PERSONS who don't study hard never amount to anything. Everybody should amount to something.

At Local Theatres This Week

AT LOEW'S

A bit of unusual merit in vaudeville and a fair screen production is presented to theatre-goers at Loew's this week.

The picture entitled "The Return of Peter Grimm" is an admixture of pathos and spiritism and has gripping moments of individual acting chiefly portrayed by Alex B. Francis.

Sanborn's Syncopators entertain in their own invincible way and score a great success with a pot-pourri of Irish medleys. Harry Cronin, saxophone soloist draw much applause.

The Weiss trio who open the vaudeville program give a very finished performance in balancing.

One of the number an accordion player add to the versatility of the act. The songs of Furnam and Evans are carried through by a supreme effort of the male member of the team. Act fair.

Bensee and Baird, funmakers kept the audience in laughter through vocal burlesque. Miss Baird has extreme mobility of features which aids the act to good success.

Contrasts are to be found in the next act. McGrath and Deeds. First there is the high tenor voice in contrast with the deep base voice. The base sings well. They play the contrast to the state of boredom when they turn to rankish sentimentality an act that is primarily intended to be humorous.

The final act, called the Modern Revue consists of two mads and five boys in the headlines of the Bill. The dancing in this act is some of the best ever seen here in vaudeville and the rhythm in the terpsichorean art is excellent.

Here And There

Shanghai is at the present time operating more trolley buses, carrying more passengers per mile of route, and charging a lower fare in terms of gold wares, than any other system in the world.

The champion Jersey cow of the world, an out and out British Columbia product, is to go on tour according to the directors of David Spencer Limited of Vancouver, who stated the champion would arrive at the Canadian Pacific Express yards shortly.

Developments in bacon-hog raising in Nova-Scotia and particularly in the Annapolis Valley as a by-product of the dairy industry, is already an assured success. In 1926, 21 swine clubs were functioning successfully in the Province. Of these eight operated in the Dominion Atlantic Railway territory.

Grain left Montreal for seventeen different countries in the 1926 season. Great Britain imported to the highest extent, followed in order by Holland, Germany, Belgium, Italy, France, Norway, Greece, Ireland, Portugal and South Africa. Great Britain took 39,291,763 bushels or 31 per cent. of the total exports from the Port, being also the heaviest purchaser of oats. Norway and Holland were the two largest buyers of rye.

FRESHMEN WERE WINNERS IN CLASS BASKETBALL TILTS

Two Sophomore Teams Went Down To Defeat Before Frosh

GAME DEFAULTED

League Leaders Were Given Easy Victory — Three Times For First

This year's freshmen came out winners in the basketball games played last night in the High gym. Commerce freshmen defeated Arts B.Sc. II, 24-3. The Science freshmen overcame Medicine I, 14 to 13; while the Arts freshmen succeeding in downing Science II, 26 to 7. All games were handled well and the players were very sportsmanlike as regards penalties.

First Game

In the first game, Com. I defeated Arts B.Sc. II, 24 to 3. As the score indicates, this affair was somewhat one-sided, the Commercialists practically having their own way. Their combination and quick passing completely fooled the scientists, who lacked practice considerably. Harris and Bellman played well for the losers, while credit may be given to all of Com. I.

The following is the line-up: COM. I (24) ARTS B.Sc. II (3)

Forward
Taylor ..... Bellman
Kaufman ..... Singer
Centre
Robbins ..... Harris
Defense
Ross ..... Itkin
Wallack ..... Katzman
Sub
Ogulnick .....

Second Game

After a very close battle, Med. I succumbed to Science I, 14 to 13. This contest was featured by neat combination, sharp-shooting, and hardly any penalties. The audience was kept in suspense throughout, and it was not till the final whistle that either team was sure of victory. In the first period the doctors took the lead and ran up a score of 8 to 3 by half-time. However, after the resuming of play, the Science freshmen rallied and Montgomery scored twice in succession. The doctors held the lead till the last minute, when, in the dying seconds of the game, Montgomery, the flashy centre, netted a beautiful basket, bringing his team from behind to a one point lead. Montgomery and Littlehales starred for the winners while, Blonde, Freedman and MacKinnon played well for the doctors.

The following is the line-up: MED I (13) SCI I (14)

Forward
K'neley ..... Taylor
Blonde ..... Littlehales
Centre
MacKinnon ..... Montgomery
Defense
Freedman ..... Stobart
Weintraub ..... J. A. Ogilvy
Sub
Harris ..... Hartney
Rilance .....

Third Game

Arts I added another victory to their long string by defeating Science II, 26 to 7. In the first half, Science II grabbed an early lead by five points, but the Arts freshmen seemed to come to life and soon tied the score. In the second half, all that the scientists could do was to net one basket, while Arts I was playing their usual good brand of basketball. Peacock and Watt, the stellar defense men were imprigable, while Mendels, Norris, Loures and Halpenny were shooting to perfection. Beauty played well for the losers.

The following is the line-up: ARTS I (26) SCI II (7)

Forward
Norris ..... Thorne
Mendels ..... Beauty
Centre
Halpenny ..... Apter
Defense
Watt ..... Doherty
Peacock ..... Clarke
Sub
Loures ..... Jones
McMartin .....
Bloom .....
Dancy .....

Comm. II won by default from Arts II, B.A. This breaks the four-cornered tie from first place with Comm. II, Arts I and Law II still on top of the heap.

THAW HINDERS PRACTICE

Minneapolis—Minnesota's intercollegiate hockey players, midwestern champions in 1925-26, lost nearly a week of outdoor practice at a critical time due to the gloomy condition of the ice during the January thaw that set in the day before New Year's.

Coach Emil Iverson is working hard with his men, however, in preparation for the season's first games, a brace of contests with Wisconsin at Madison, January 14 and 15. Built on the nucleus of last year's team, Wisconsin is said to have a fast moving aggression and Iverson has his men on their toes, hoping to keep up the whirling pace that took them through last season unbeaten.

Down To Brass Tacks

With D. A. L. MacDonald.

TOO LATE!! TOO LATE!!

In Monday's issue of the Daily we noticed an ad inserted by the Athletic Board reminding all students that before participating in competitive athletics, they must be physically examined under penalty of suspension. We refuse to make facetious comments about "closing the barn door after the bull is gone" but we would like to know when the suspension of Mitchell, the hockey player, is to be lifted. A good portion of the student body is asking the same question.

WHILE WE ARE AT IT

And while we are at it, one wonders why an ad was not inserted informing the student body that there was a senior hockey fixture at the Forum, on Monday night. Neither information regarding the game nor the number of the ticket to gain admission was published. As a result, but one hundred adventurous souls saw McGill win their first Q.A.H.A. game and incidentally turn in their best performance of the season. Several reasons have been advanced for the delinquency. Some say it was because the fewer that go into the Forum, the less comes out of the athletic board coffers. Others (more charitable souls and fortunately the majority of the student body) say it was but a lapse of memory on the part of the board. We hope the latter premise is correct.

A VOICE IN THE WILDERNESS

Last week, if you will remember, we lamented the fact that there was no cheerleader at the intercollegiate hockey game and very pointedly asked why. Since then Varsity played here in an intercollegiate basketball game and again the necessary cheer leader was lacking. Those who saw the game will testify to the statement that on their showing on Saturday, the basketball squad is worthy of some support by the student body and that it is not too much to ask of the cheerleader to either come out or appoint some one to take his place in leading the cheering.

GENTLEMEN OF THE BAND

We see by yesterday's paper that you are scheduled for a concert on Feb. 22. We would like to remind you that on Feb. 4, Varsity comes here to play a game that will decide the hockey honors for 1927. Your support will mean a lot and we expect to see you there in force. That means you too, Mr. Cheerleader.

SWIMMERS READY FOR INTER-FACULTY MEET

Water Polo Between Grads and McGill also Scheduled

(By the Natatory Nymph).

Tomorrow evening will see all the novice swimmers of McGill on their toes to win points for their faculty in the Interfaculty meet at the K. of C. Tank. There has been unusual interest shown in the meet this year and the faculties are equally represented by point of numbers. At present the favorites appear to be the Meds, who have a team that is well selected for all the events. With regard to the big polo match the betting shows McGill with the odds slightly in their favor but the Grads are doing their best to pull things tight.

Close on half a hundred of entries have been received for the eight competitive events and in no case can there be said to be any outstanding man as was the case last year. It will be one of the closest competed meets that McGill has seen for several years. Each of the polo teams will have a complete sextet upon which to draw for subs so the game will be fast and snappy all the way through. The Grads are relying upon the support which they always get from their constant rooters but McGill will show them that they can equal them even in this respect.

Those who have actually entered for specific races form a strong nucleus for any faculty to rely upon but there are always post entries which in many cases spring a surprise with a dark horse. Rumor has been rife that at least one team will adopt this method of procedure. Yet it may be seen that those who have been down regularly to practice will have by far the greater chance. The following are the men selected to begin the meet with the Relay race for which the speediest men are required:

Arts	Science	Med.
Barr	Goddard	Legge
Shackell	MacLaren	Copping
Brabander	Thorne	Astwood
Gilman	Keller	Henderson
Mathams

Grade	McGill
J. Jardine	Goddard
C. Walters	Buchanan
D. I. Forsythe	Gilman
H. Fisk	MacLaren
G. Verot	Mathams
M. Bruker	Gibbons
G. Vickerson	Clarholm
J. Ross	Marcou
M. Moore	Legge
J. Giles	Thorne
	Shackell
	Astwood

LOSES TO GIRL

This is the year of fallen champions—boxing, tennis golf and baseball have new leaders. But the only case on record of a champion losing his honors to a girl is that of a Boston University student. His title was champion hitch-hiker to the college. The young lady, he new champion, insists that her victory was not a case of feminine charm winning over manly determination, but was due to the male's chivalry. It is rumoured that the ex-champ reached the goal first, but hid until sure that his opponent was already there. The age of chivalry.

HOCKEY PRACTICE

There will be no practice today, Wednesday, as ice is not available at Forum. There will be a Senior practice tomorrow, Thursday, from 5 to 6 and on Friday for Seniors, intermediates and juniors from 6 to 6.

DENTS WON ONLY GAME

Defeated Arts III 4-3, in Inter-class Hockey

Arts I went down to defeat before the Dentist's team, losing by one point, the score being 4-3. Med. 4 defaulted to Sci. 3, when the failed to turn up.

The game between Arts I and Dentistry, started at 5.10 sharp. The game opened with a rush and Arts scored a goal. Then the play slackened down and they began to show a poor exhibition of hockey. In the second period they woke up and started to show some of their speed. The play was very fast till the Dents scored when it slowed down again. It soon picked up speed and the Dents scored again, putting them in the lead by one point. The Arts sextette soon scored another goal evening it up once more. Before the Dents could rally their opponents put in another goal, gaining the lead for the last time. With one minute to go the Dents scored again, bringing the score to three all. It seemed as if the game was going to be a draw, when with a last sudden spurt, the Dentists-to-be broke through the Arts defence and scored a goal with five seconds to go. When the final whistle blew the score stood Dentistry 4—Arts 3.

FOOTBALL REMAINS DANGEROUS SPORT

"Which is the Most Dangerous Sport?"

Which is the most dangerous sport? Is it football, polo, hockey, bull-fighting, auto-racing — or any one of the other thrillers in which serious accident occur? Without going into vital statistics of the case, or for that matter even attempting to answer the question, let us look over a few of the aforementioned sports and see where in the danger lies.

Football is still a dangerous sport and no game of violent personal contact between two teams or red-blooded youths can be without occasional injuries—but the present game, even though it is played harder than ever before and by a great many more men and boys, has fewer serious injuries than twenty years ago. The answer lies not only in the absence of mass plays, but in the fact that the training methods, of today are so much better and the players are in vastly superior condition when game time comes around. Eighteen players were killed in 1905 and about 160 injured but you heard of very few fatalities or serious hurts during the recent football season.

Auto-racing has its good and its bad years. In one season 1924, six "Knights of the Roaring Road" were killed. The loss of Jimmy Murphy, Joe Boyer, Darb's Pest, Earl Anstenberg, Earl Wilson and Ralph Thomas have been unequaled before or since. Boxing has suffered very few fatalities. Incidents such as the death of Frankie Jerome and Clever Sencio indirectly caused by Bud Taylor are few and far between. The supervision of the various boxing commissions is usually too strict to permit an unconditioned fighter to enter the ring. Jess Willard's case was different. A "man-mountain" of his size and strength was liable to kill anyone he hit with full force.

As far as baseball goes it's a wonder more pitchers and infielders weren't killed when the "rabbit-ball" was in vogue. Ray Chapman's tragic death after being hit by one of Carl May's underhand shots, is the only fatal accident that I can recall. Ice-hockey attracts crowds because it is thrilling and dangerous but the records show very few fatal injuries from this slashing game. Bull-fighting is no game for a weak heart — or a weak stomach, either. Lacrosse and polo take their toll of victims, but according to Pedlar Palmer's son, who was in America recently the cruellest thing in sports, next to cock-fighting is the Grand National Steeplechase in England. Photos showing the jumps at Aintree remind one of a troop of cavalry under machine-gun fire—Stanford Daily.

"I know, you're just drunk enough to tell the truth."—Ex.

HARVARD CRIMSON ANSWERS HUBBARD'S CHARGES THAT PRINCETON PLAYED DIRTY

"Wyman D. Hubbard must be credited with an honest desire to get at the root of the Princeton-Harvard break by publishing his article in Liberty accusing Princeton football teams of "dirty" tactics. He says, "I am writing this article with the sincere belief that it may help to clear the football air,—that relations between Harvard and Princeton may eventually be resumed." It is highly unfortunate that such good intentions have been so unintelligently acted upon.

"Hubbard cites ten specific cases of injury but he does not and necessarily cannot prove that they were the result of "dirty football." Already denials have appeared from men like Treat of Princeton whose opinion is as reliable as Hubbard's. There will undoubtedly be more such denials and counter-denials and the good intentions of Hubbard's former tackle will be submerged in a flood of angry publicity which will lead to nowhere. "Dirty" football cannot be proved by individual opinion and accusation, by slow movies or any other such method because there is always another, equally good side to the question. The only judge who is competent to accuse and condemn a player or a team for dirty football is the referee. He is there to prevent infringement of the rules. He is neither an excited partisan in the stands or an emotionally keyed up linesman or half back in the heat of a hard game. His judgment, because it is obviously the best, must be taken as final. In none of the Princeton-Harvard games since the war has any member of either team received a major penalty. There have been one or two penalties for unnecessary roughness, some for holding and other minor infractions, all of which were quite evenly distributed but there has been no action by any referee to indicate that Princeton-Harvard games are in any way distinct from other games on the Harvard schedule in cleanliness of play. This silent record is conclusive. Against it no matter how honest they are, flimsy lists of incidents like Hubbard's based on circumstantial and partial evidence cannot stand up. It is easy to refute them as it is to make them. The only purpose they serve is the creation of further animosities and heated argument.

"Not only does Hubbard's article defeat its own avowed purpose, but the manner of its doing aggravates the public spectacle element in intercollegiate football and particularly in Princeton-Harvard football. If Hubbard had anything to say, and wanted to say it publicly, why did he not go to the Harvard Graduate Magazine or the Alumni Bulletin? If he wanted to clear the air between Harvard and Princeton, and settle once and for all the Princeton "dirty" football why did he not write for a Harvard-Princeton audience instead of going to a popular, sensational weekly whose circulation is largely among the readers of tabloid newspapers, among the rank and file of the subway strap-hangers among those outside the collegiate circle, whose only possible interest in the Harvard-Princeton football break is the amount of dirt to be squeezed out of it. Already the athletic relations between the two universities have been made into a public scandal. They receive the same treatment as the recent baseball crisis. They received the same attention from the street corner loafer, the same insane comments from people who never went to Harvard or Princeton or any other college, whose interest in them as it is in Charlie Chaplin, or Ban Johnson or Ty Cobb, is aroused by the unhealthy appetite for scandal and more scandal.

"Football like any other collegiate sport, is and should be if it is not, of, by, and for the undergraduate. President Lowell pointed this out very clearly in his report. It is a point worth making and repeating over and over again, for losing sight of it is responsible for the troubles which beset intercollegiate football today. Football has become too much the public's business, too little the undergraduate's interest. It is hardly too much to say that the recent break between Princeton and Harvard was treated in the press as a diplomatic break between the United States and Mexico would be treated. Hubbard has written to this public and so given them another dirty rag to chew.

"His article and the repercussions which will inevitably succeed it will thus aggravate the very unhealthy public attention which the Harvard-Princeton break has already received, which intercollegiate football in general is every day receiving. Hubbard was entitled to express his opinion although it was in no way the general opinion of Harvard University. That he should have done so for the purpose of solving the Princeton-Harvard problem was unintelligent for he has defeated his own end. That he should have done so in the manner which he chose was very harmful to the best interests of the game which he has played and loves."

Steamship companies brought approximately 165,000 passengers to the Dominion in 1926, an increase of nearly 48,000 over the previous years. Third class passengers, the majority of whom were immigrants or new settlers, accounted for over 123,000. An outstanding feature of travel has been the development of tourist third class accommodation. Approximately 7,100 passengers of this kind were carried eastbound across the Atlantic from Canada and 8,650 transported westbound during 1926, making a grand total of this kind of travel of 15,750 for the year.

Hitherto the nets used by Canadian fishermen have been imported from Europe and the United States, which has at times entailed heavy losses owing to late deliveries.

THE KING MUST ACCEPT ADVICE OF HIS CABINET

ments were served at the close of meeting, before which a vote of thanks was tendered to the Principal for his hospitality.

Among those who attended were Professors Waugh and Adair, and Messrs. F. R. Scott and T. W. L. MacDermott of the History Department.

NEW LITERARY CLUB FORMED BY STUDENTS

Thursday, Jan. 27, a name will be definitely chosen. Elections, too, will be held this Thursday. The officers of the club will be President, Vice-president, Treasurer and Honorary Board of Advisors, which will be composed of Professors of the English Department of McGill.

The idea was first sponsored by students taking honor courses in English Courses at McGill. The membership will be thrown open to all Honor Students at McGill of the 2nd, 3rd, and 4th years. Membership may be thrown open to Freshmen at a later date. The Literary discussions and debates will be a great help to all English students.

The first meeting held last evening was merely a representative meeting called for the purpose of discussing the formation of the club. R. Specter took the chair and discussed with the members, who were for the most part Honor students, the object of the club. All particulars which will concern the club as a whole, will be dealt with on Thursday.

FAMOUS FIFTH SYMPHONY TO BE PRESENTED

The extraordinary vigour and force which pervade the entire work, the originality and yet simplicity of the opening, the melodiousness and grace of the second movement, the fascinating mysterious of the Scherzo which in most symphonies, is usually of a light and jovial nature the triumphal character of the last movement can still be sensed by a present-day audience if it is not prejudiced against Beethoven by modernists who boldly assert that he is hopelessly out of date.

First Movement

The first movement, Allegro con brio, is really built up from the short "motto" figure with which the movement begins. This short figure not only dominates the first movement but is an important feature of both the Scherzo and Finale (thus anticipating Berlioz with his "idée fixe" and Wagner with his leitmotif).

"In the second movement Andante con moto, in the key of A flat the melodious theme is introduced by the violas and violoncelli and is subsequently treated in variation-form interspersed with short episodic passages. In this movement Beethoven with an economy of means secured contrasting effects of tone-colour which must have impressed the hearers of his day as wonderful.

The third movement, a Scherzo, though not so styled by Beethoven cannot be dissociated from the first movement since they are linked together by a passage in which the drum plays a conspicuous part and in which instruments are gradually added till the Finale bursts upon the ear with its triumphant march effect. Also in the course of the Finale there is a recurrence to the Scherzo during the working-out portion of the movement while the little rhythmic figure with which the whole symphony started makes its presence felt. A realization of the way in which the two separate movements, i.e. the Scherzo (with its Trio) and the Finale really form one long and continuous piece is necessary to the intelligent listener.

The demand for tickets has even exceeded that of the first concert and accordingly a full hall is expected. Those who still wish tickets for this afternoon's performance may obtain them at $1.10 each (including tax) from the secretary of the Faculty of Music, 323 Sherbrooke St. West.

The battle was over. For three days a large number of Greeks had fought for supremacy, and evenfall of the fourth day, found a young man running homeward with a smile of victory on his face. Many miles had he run to carry the news back home.

As he neared the city, it was evident that he was on the point of exhaustion. Dogs barked at him, and children dropped their playthings to get a hurried glance at him. His heart was pounding within him like a trip hammer, and his lungs were bursting. He redoubled his efforts, and strode onward, and when he reached his father's office he shouted, "Father, we pledged eight of the smoothest freshmen on the campus, and five of them are millionaires' sons."

And smiling, the boy fell dead.—Ex.
